GRAB POLICY IS GIVEN SETBACK

United States and Germany Will Protect China.

NOTICE SERVED ON POWERS

Correspondence Between Secretary Knox and Ambassador Bernstorff Indicates That Understanding Exists Between Two Nations and That Russia, Japan and England Must Cease Efforts to Annex Chinese Territory.

Washington, Feb. 8.—Secretary of State Knox, in a note to the German ambassador, has again put the United States in a position of protector of the integrity of the Chinese empire and places this government on record in favor of a policy of "hands off" during the present political upheaval in China.

The publication of the note is also regarded here as in effect a declaration to the world that the United States and Germany will be found acting together against any "grabs" in China by other powers. The publication of the note follows an exchange between the governments of Germany and the United States in regard to the situation. The note was handed to Ambassador Bernstorff in response to an inquiry from the German government as to the "attitude and general impressions of the government of the United States in regard to conditions in China."

Copies of the note have been placed in the hands of the governments of the other powers chiefly interested in China, namely Great Britain, France, Russia and Japan. It is expected that the text of the note and the circumstances in which its publication was agreed upon by the governments of Germany and the United States will have a strong moral effect in regard to future developments in China.

Prohibits Territorial Grabs.

Full faith in the adhesion of all the powers to the policy of non-interference and absolute neutrality in the Chinese situation is expressed by Secretary Knox in the note. The secretary further declares that the United States is firmly convinced that, in the event of further steps by the powers in the Chinese situation, the United States and Germany will come to the policy of concerted action.

Secretary Knox also declares it to be the policy of the United States to discourage its national bankers from making any loan to either side in the Chinese situation, regarding it as to either a violation of the policy of absolute neutrality.

This step upon the part of Secretary Knox is plainly a move in continuation of the Hay policy in regard to China. Germany has from the first been most heartily in accord with the United States in maintaining the integrity of China and the absolute neutrality of the powers during the present revolution.

The quarter in which the Knox note is expected to do the most good is in the councils of Russia, Japan and Great Britain. Ever since the beginning of the Chinese revolution suspicion has fallen repeatedly upon Russia and Japan. These two powers have been frequently reported as inducing some independent action in China, leading either to territorial aggrandizement or the currying of favor with one side or the other in the civil war. Such reports have been consistently denied, and the details have been accepted at their face value in Washington. Nevertheless, it has been recognized throughout that the interests of both Russia and Japan in China are a constant temptation to those powers to take advantage of the helplessness of the empire.

Says Clark's Everglade Charges Are One-Sided and Untrue.

Washington, Feb. 8.—Thorough investigation of the everglades land controversy was begun this morning by the house committee on expenditures in the agricultural department, when Chairman Moss was directed to issue subpoenas for witnesses. Hearings will probably not be begun until some time next week, but Chairman Moss this morning directed the issuance of a subpoena for J. O. Wright, formerly an employee of the department and now chief engineer of the everglades drainage project. Wright, on January 19 of this year, brought to the attention of Solicitor McCabe the charges upon which Elliott and Morehouse were fired and Singleton suspended.

There were several new developments in the everglades controversy. The department issued a statement denouncing as "prejudiced, one-sided and untrue" the statement given out by Representative Clark of Florida, declaring that Secretary Wilson suppressed a warning circular and an engineer's report on the everglades because the circular and report did not please the land speculators operating in the everglades. The department's statement also declares that Elliott and Morehouse were dismissed "because they had certified and presented false accounts, knowing them to be false, on which the government paid out money."

Fails To Return

Mansfield Officer Goes After Alleged Embezzler Walters.

Mansfield, O., Feb. 8.—Sheriff Carroll went to Anderson, Ind., prepared to bring back Charles H. Walters, former president of the Mansfield Rubber company, and wanted in this city to answer to indictments charging him with embezzlement. If Walters refuses to return voluntarily the sheriff will secure requisition papers immediately for his return.

After his arrest and release on bond last Saturday, Walters went to Buffalo to visit his wife, who is dying of cancer, and it was tacitly understood that he was to stop off here on his return to Anderson, but he did not do so.

It is estimated that citizens of Mansfield and vicinity invested $2,000,000 in the stock of the Walters concern.

How London Celebrated the Centenary of Dickens' Birth

OUR English cousins anticipated the actual date (Feb. 7) in celebrating by a London theatrical performance the centenary of the birth of Charles Dickens. It took place at the Coliseum, one of the great music halls, and the program consisted almost entirely of dramatic presentations of the great novelist's works. Nearly all the best known actors and actresses in the metropolis took part in the performance, the proceeds of which—about $10,000—were added to the fund which a London newspaper is raising for the benefit of Dickens' granddaughters. Among the characters represented were Scrooge and Mrs. Sairey Gamp. Very interesting also was the tableau based upon Sir Luke Fildes' famous painting "The Empty Chair," representing Dickens' library at Gadshill filled with figures of the characters of the novels and of his well known contemporaries. Quill and Sampson Brass, the characters shown in the illustration, were impersonated by Ivan Berlyn and Fred Ross.

Belfast Unionists Are Quiet

Streets of Belfast Give No Indication of Disturbance.

Belfast, Feb. 8.—Belfast streets this morning give no indication of the disturbances predicted at the great home rule demonstration in Celtic park today, where Winston Churchill, John Redmond and others are to address a liberal meeting. The streets are crowded, but everyone appears to be in the best of humor.

The Unionists made no attempt to revive their scheme for a counter demonstration in Ulster hall last night, the Unionist council having abandoned this project because of the fear that it might lead to trouble, which would be directly traceable to their organization. Through the efforts of Winston Churchill and in deference to the feelings of the Unionists, the Liberals gave up their lease of Ulster hall for today and hired the football grounds for the demonstration.

Halfhill of Allen County Throws Tacks in Path and Convention May Put Heel Down Hard on Making of Constitutional Provisions Outside Convention Hall—Special Committee Reports That Ordinance of 1787 Is Dead Letter at Present Time.

Columbus, O., Feb. 8.—The plan of President Bigelow and his followers to get a majority of the delegates to the constitutional convention into a caucus to agree upon an initiative and referendum clause to be submitted as a part of the new constitution, was practically exploded by Delegate Halfhill, when a test vote on his resolution to put an end to caucuses showed a majority of members present favored the resolution.

Reports spread that the Bigelow men had prevailed on 53 delegates to sign a pledge to go into a caucus. The understanding was that the pledge was effective after 65 had signed that the majority should rule and that the action of the caucus should be made binding on all.

Before enough had signed, the possibilities of this proposition were explained by many delegates. They pointed out that 33 members thus could rule the convention of 119 members.

Secretary of State Graves Rules as to District Primaries.

Columbus, O., Feb. 8.—Secretary of State Graves ruled that district delegates and alternates to national political conventions shall be elected by direct vote of the people. He thereby set at rest fears that the election of delegates by direct vote might be made void by county or congressional committees.

Graves announced that he would not rule on the method of electing delegates-at-large and presidential electors until after the state Republican and Democratic central committees had issued their calls.

The question arose because of two conflicting sections in the state election laws, one passed in 1908 and the other in 1911.

Washington, Feb. 8.—In caucus the Democrats of the house upheld Mr. Underwood's demand for a conservative investigation of the money trust by the standing committee of the house by a vote of 116 to 66. The Henry-Lindbergh resolution authorizing a sweeping investigation by a special committee, as urged by Mr. Bryan, was laid on the table. Among those who voted to uphold the hands of Leader Underwood was Speaker Clark. The vote by which the Bryan-Henry resolution was taken immediately followed the reading of a telegram from Mr. Bryan as follows:

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 8.—The situation in Mexico continues to grow more serious, the City of Mexico now being cut off from communication with the United States by the rebels, who have burned railroad bridges between the capital and northern points.

Pasqual Orozco, commander of rurales in Chihuahua and principal military man for Madero during the Mexican insurrection of a year ago, has been installed as governor of Chihuahua, and supporters of the government look to him to be able to restore order in the state. He was declared governor of the state by the state legislature, after another leave of absence had been granted constitutional Governor Abram Gonzales, who is serving in Madero's cabinet.

The revolution in his state against the existing government in Mexico has already gained considerable impetus, however, and a larger number of men are in the field in Chihuahua alone.

Broken Rail on D. T. & I. Discovery Prevents Wreck

Freight Train Running Ahead of Passenger Train Near Jeffersonville Locates Broken Rail in Nick of Time.

South-bound D. T. & I. passenger train No. 5, due here at 9:50 had a very narrow escape from being wrecked about one mile north of Jeffersonville Thursday morning by a broken rail.

A south-bound local preceded the passenger train five or ten minutes, and it struck the broken rail and almost went into the ditch. It crawled over the dangerous place and pulled into Jeffersonville, leaving a flagman stationed at the broken rail to flag the on-coming passenger train.

The passenger train swung around the bend and was flagged down within a short distance of the dangerous spot. The train crept over the broken rail with little delay, and the Jeffersonville section crew hurried to the spot and replaced the damaged rail.

It is believed by the train men that if the passenger train had struck the rail while going full speed that it would have gone into the ditch, and a serious wreck would have been the result.

Not Necessary To Enter Primary

Orange Frazer, chief deputy of the Clinton County Board of Elections, has a letter from the Secretary of State, who is the Chief Election Supervisor for the State, confirming his opinion that if a candidate for Probate Judge wants to go before a primary election he may do so by getting up the necessary petitions and complying with the requirements which apply to other candidates. As all judicial offices have been taken out of politics, the officers must be elected on non-partisan, separate ballots without party emblem or mark of any kind. So going into a primary would do no one any good. It would not place his name on the ballot, but in November he would have to file the necessary petitions and become a candidate in the way the law requires. In other words going into the primary would not give him a nomination and he would stand in the fall as though there had been no primary. For that reason a candidate for Probate Judge could not be nominated and the office has been eliminated from the primary. That was true and yet if some one is anxious to make two campaigns, one in the spring and one in the fall, there is nothing to prevent him doing so, but making one in the spring would get him nothing.

THE BEAUTY SPOT

Announced as one of Broadway's biggest, brightest, breeziest and best musical plays, "The Beauty Spot" by Reginald DeKoven and Joseph Herbert, with Frank Deshon as the star, will play an engagement of one night at the Empire Theatre, Friday, Feb. 9th.

Frank Deshon will be remembered as formerly starring in "Miss Bob White," "The Office Boy," and "A Knight For a Day."

The play is said to have been embellished with every possible touch known to the art of staging a musical comedy. The two scenes are described as rich in color and design representing a bathing resort in the South of France and the tropical gardens adjoining the hotel. A large chorus is introduced in every form, from little girls to grand dames, and it is claimed that every face is pretty, ever figure a delight, every dance effect attractive and every light effect new. An artist's fete in the second act introduces golden chariots drawn by real live ponies, of the ballet and Goldie Joab in her dance, does some very charming novelties.

DeKoven's music is too well known for comment, but in "The Beauty Spot" it is claimed that he has grasped the more popular style of music in a manner which goes far to prove he has kept the present day in mind. Number after number of the excellent score has that tunefulness which lingers in the ear. "When Cupid Comes a Tapping," "Creole Days," "A Prince of Borneo," "The Boulevard Glide," "Gobble Glide," "In a Hammock," "Cutie Dear," and many other numbers, are songs that are said will be remembered for many a day.

Disappointed Noted Humorist

Commenting upon the recent appearance of Strickland Gillilan in Sabina a few nights ago, the Sabina Tribune says:

"So far as we can learn every one was satisfied excepting the chief performer, and he not being acquainted with the self-control of a Sabina audience expressed disappointment over the lack of applause. It seems strange to Sabina people, who thought they were expressing their appreciation of a really good lecture in a refined way to be criticised because they did not get up and pound the floor with bludgeons. One of the management expressed his regret that the hinges on the door squeaked upon the entrance of some late arrivals, when Mr. Gillilan said that it was not the noise of the door, but the silence of the audience, which appalled him. The lecture, with its blending of humor and pathos, was splendid in its conception, and was accentuated by the droll manner of delivery.

Broken Rail on D. T. & I. Discovery Prevents Wreck

Freight Train Running Ahead of Passenger Train Near Jeffersonville Locates Broken Rail in Nick of Time.

South-bound D. T. & I. passenger train No. 5, due here at 9:50 had a very narrow escape from being wrecked about one mile north of Jeffersonville Thursday morning by a broken rail.

A south-bound local preceded the passenger train five or ten minutes, and it struck the broken rail and almost went into the ditch. It crawled over the dangerous place and pulled into Jeffersonville, leaving a flagman stationed at the broken rail to flag the on-coming passenger train.

The passenger train swung around the bend and was flagged down within a short distance of the dangerous spot. The train crept over the broken rail with little delay, and the Jeffersonville section crew hurried to the spot and replaced the damaged rail.

It is believed by the train men that if the passenger train had struck the rail while going full speed that it would have gone into the ditch, and a serious wreck would have been the result.

Wives Charge Husbands With Deserting Them

Edna May Long has filed suit in Probate court for divorce from John B. Long, in which she charges him with having been guilty of habitual drunkenness, leaving her and their children alone at night and failing to provide them with the common necessities of life.

She further avers that in September, 1911, the defendant deserted her and has since remained away, and that his whereabouts is to her unknown. She asks divorce, custody of the child, and all other relief possible.

They were married in Columbus on May 29, 1906.

HOWARD VS. HOWARD.

Fred Howard is made defendant in an action for divorce brought by his wife, Gusie Howard, in which she alleges that Howard deserted her in May, 1908, and has failed to provide for her.

They were married in this city on Sept. 4, 1907, according to the petition.

To Reform School Young Boy Is Sent

William Burns, a lad of 14, who for several years has been an inmate of the children's home, was taken before Probate Judge Patton, Wednesday evening, and sentenced to the Boys' Industrial school at Lancaster.

The lad was charged with incorrigibility, having shown a vicious disposition which could not be subdued.

The Grasshopper Still in Ditch

Notwithstanding that the wreck crew worked most of the night in an attempt to remove the Grasshopper wreck near Octa, they did not succeed in clearing up the wreckage until late Thursday.

The bridge has not been rebuilt, and work will be rushed on it until completed. The crew labored under great difficulties Wednesday night, and the nature of the wreck has made it a difficult proposition to handle.

Former Wife Was Near Heigle

The Marysville Tribune, published at Marysville, Ohio, where Dave Heigle was arrested by Chief McCoy and brought to this city last Saturday, states that Mrs. Heigle, who was divorced from Heigle in this city has been working in a restaurant in Marysville and that the pair have been upon exceedingly friendly terms.

Mrs. Heigle is the woman who fought the officers when they went to place her under arrest in this city. She was arrested in this city upon one occasion by detectives from Columbus.

Eggs Take Drop Of 12c. on Dozen

Once more Mrs. Hen can look her shadow in the face and not be ashamed of the price of her particular kind of fruit.

Eggs took a tumble from 44 cents per dozen early Thursday morning to 32 cents per dozen at 11:30 a. m., or a drop of 12 cents on each dozen.

The price being paid is now 28c, while early in the morning the price was 40c per dozen.

The great drop was occasioned by warmer weather and the dumping of millions of cold storage eggs on the market at a rate which immediately started the price downward.

Not Necessary To Enter Primary

Orange Frazer, chief deputy of the Clinton County Board of Elections, has a letter from the Secretary of State, who is the Chief Election Supervisor for the State, confirming his opinion that if a candidate for Probate Judge wants to go before a primary election he may do so by getting up the necessary petitions and complying with the requirements which apply to other candidates. As all judicial offices have been taken out of politics, the officers must be elected on non-partisan, separate ballots without party emblem or mark of any kind. So going into a primary would do no one any good. It would not place his name on the ballot, but in November he would have to file the necessary petitions and become a candidate in the way the law requires. In other words going into the primary would not give him a nomination and he would stand in the fall as though there had been no primary. For that reason a candidate for Probate Judge could not be nominated and the office has been eliminated from the primary. That was true and yet if some one is anxious to make two campaigns, one in the spring and one in the fall, there is nothing to prevent him doing so, but making one in the spring would get him nothing.

THE BEAUTY SPOT

Announced as one of Broadway's biggest, brightest, breeziest and best musical plays, "The Beauty Spot" by Reginald DeKoven and Joseph Herbert, with Frank Deshon as the star, will play an engagement of one night at the Empire Theatre, Friday, Feb. 9th.

Frank Deshon will be remembered as formerly starring in "Miss Rob White," "The Office Boy," and "A Knight For a Day."

The play is said to have been embellished with every possible touch known to the art of staging a musical comedy. The two scenes are described as rich in color and design representing a bathing resort in the South of France and the tropical gardens adjoining the hotel. A large chorus is introduced in every form, from little girls to grand dames, and it is claimed that every face is pretty, every figure a delight, every dance effect attractive and every light effect new. An artist's fete in the second act introduces golden chariots drawn by real live ponies, of the ballet and Goldie Joab in her dance, does some very charming novelties.

DeKoven's music is too well known for comment, but in "The Beauty Spot" it is claimed that he has grasped the more popular style of music in a manner which goes far to prove he has kept the present day in mind. Number after number of the excellent score has that tunefulness which lingers in the ear. "When Cupid Comes a Tapping," "Creole Days," "A Prince of Borneo," "The Boulevard Glide," "Gobble Gobble," "In a Hammock," "Cutie Dear," and many other numbers, are songs that are said will be remembered for many a day.

"PEA JUGGLER" MAY RETIRE

Frank Bowerman, Christy Mathewson's Old-Time Backstop, Is Expected to Quit Game.

Frank Bowerman of Romeo, Mich., famous as the inventor of the only method of eating peas with a knife and without the loss of a pea, also as the only man who ever caught the delivery of Christy Mathewson to the complete satisfaction of the peerless Christopher, will quit baseball unless he gets his release from Kansas City, says the Utica Blade.

Bowerman has been in the American association for several years. He first played on the Indianapolis team under Charlie Carr. Bowerman and Carr were bosom friends until a dispute arose one day and they became bitter enemies. The result was that Bowerman and Carr split for good.

At present Bowerman is the property of the Kansas City club. Carr is going out to manage Kansas City this year and he said that he would not have Bowerman on the club. Likewise Bowerman does not care to play under Carr.

Last Temple Walls Are Pulled Down

Forty days after the big fire of December 30th beholds the street in front of where the Masonic Temple stood, piled high with a small mountain of brick and twisted steel, while the last of the remaining walls of the Temple were pulled down this week and the giant stack alone remains.

Activity about the ruins will now soon cease until the actual work of commencing the new buildings is taken up, which will be done within the month, it is believed.

Main street, during the spring and summer will be stacked with building material, and the place will be a busy one until the buildings are completed.

Three Newspapers Sold During Past Three Days

Three big newspapers in Ohio have undergone changes of ownership the past few days, and important changes are promised in each case.

The Commercial Tribune of Cincinnati is the largest plant to change hands, being purchased by Garry Herrmann and a syndicate of wealthy politicians. Scott Small, a former newspaper man and until recently Director of Public Safety in Cincinnati, will be the new manager, while E. O. Eschelby, president of the Commercial Tribune Company for several years, will retire from active newspaper work. No changes have been announced in the general policy of the Tribune.

The Dayton Herald on Wednesday morning, was purchased by E. G. Burkham, owner of the Dayton Journal, who secured the whole of the capital stock and assumed control Wednesday afternoon.

A controlling interest in the Times Democrat, Democratic organ of Allen county and published at Lima, was sold to A. Weikelbaum and L. S. Galvin, the latter being a former newspaper man of Jamestown. The paper is one of the most influential and prosperous in the Northwest and will be continued along Democratic lines.

FUNERAL OF MRS. C. W. BARNES.

A large number attended the funeral of Mrs. C. W. Barnes, one of Washington's old citizens, at Grace church, Wednesday morning. Rev. T. W. Locke had charge of the services, assisted by Rev. W. I. Campbell and Rev. Orndorff.

After the reading of the obituary, Rev. Locke made an impressive little talk.

Mrs. Wirt Shoop and Mrs. Arthur Burgett sang sweetly the hymns, "Saved by Grace" and "He Leadeth Me," and Mrs. Shoop a solo, "The Christian's Good Night." Mrs. Herbert Chapman accompanied.

The services were closed by the Women's Relief Corps, giving their beautiful ritual service, each member placing a fragrant carnation on the bier.

The casket was heaped with lovely flowers, among the special pieces the W. R. C. emblem, an immense basket of roses, carnations and narcissi, the East End Sunday school, a wreath of galax leaves and roses; Bell Telephone Co., basket spray of white carnations; the Home Telephone Co., a wreath box wood; Miss Emma Jackson's S. S. class, a spray of carnations and narcissi; Mrs. Carey Cripps' Sunday school class and spray red carnations; Miss Grace Dailey's Sunday school class.

The interment was in the Washington cemetery, with the two sons, Milt and John Barnes, Frank Whitmer, Austin Sanders, Bert Truit and Carey Cripps, pallbearers.

Relatives here from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Bert Truit, Chillicothe, Mr. John Barnes, Columbus; Mrs. Shepard, Frankfort; Mr. and Mrs. Whitmer, Waterloo; Miss Elizabeth Garner, Springfield.

Last Temple Walls Are Pulled Down

Forty days after the big fire of December 30th beholds the street in front of where the Masonic Temple stood, piled high with a small mountain of brick and twisted steel, while the last of the remaining walls of the Temple were pulled down this week and the giant stack alone remains.

Activity about the ruins will now soon cease until the actual work of commencing the new buildings is taken up, which will be done within the month, it is believed.

Main street, during the spring and summer will be stacked with building material, and the place will be a busy one until the buildings are completed.

Is Suffering With Blood Poisoning

Miss Grace Zimmerman, the popular daughter of Samuel Zimmerman of Luttrell neighborhood, is in a critical condition as a result of blood poisoning which started from a small sore on one of her fingers.

The sore place was first noticed over a month ago, and the poisoning spread until the arm was infected. This was treated and the case dismissed. Several days ago the other arm became afflicted with the disease and it has spread until she is in an exceedingly critical condition.

Three Newspapers Sold During Past Three Days

Three big newspapers in Ohio have undergone changes of ownership the past few days, and important changes are promised in each case.

The Commercial Tribune of Cincinnati is the largest plant to change hands, being purchased by Garry Herrmann and a syndicate of wealthy politicians. Scott Small, a former newspaper man and until recently Director of Public Safety in Cincinnati, will be the new manager, while E. O. Eschelby, president of the Commercial Tribune Company for several years, will retire from active newspaper work. No changes have been announced in the general policy of the Tribune.

The Dayton Herald on Wednesday morning, was purchased by E. G. Burkham, owner of the Dayton Journal, who secured the whole of the capital stock and assumed control Wednesday afternoon.

A controlling interest in the Times Democrat, Democratic organ of Allen county and published at Lima, was sold to A. Weiselbaum and L. S. Galvin, the latter being a former newspaper man of Jamestown. The paper is one of the most influential and prosperous in the Northwest and will be continued along Democratic lines.

FUNERAL OF MRS. C. W. BARNES.

A large number attended the funeral of Mrs. C. W. Barnes, one of Washington's old citizens, at Grace church, Wednesday morning. Rev. T. W. Locke had charge of the services, assisted by Rev. W. I. Campbell and Rev. Orndorff.

After the reading of the obituary, Rev. Locke made an impressive little talk.

Mrs. Wirt Shoop and Mrs. Arthur Burgett sang sweetly the hymns, "Saved by Grace" and "He Leadeth Me," and Mrs. Shoop a solo, "The Christian's Good Night." Mrs. Herbert Chapman accompanied.

The services were closed by the Women's Relief Corps, giving their beautiful ritual service, each member placing a fragrant carnation on the bier.

The casket was heaped with lovely flowers, among the special pieces the W. R. C. emblem, an immense basket of roses, carnations and narcissi, the East End Sunday school a wreath of galax leaves and roses; Bell Telephone Co., casket spray of white carnations; the Home Telephone Co., a wreath box wood; Miss Emma Jackson's S. S. class, a spray of carnations and narcissi; Mrs. Carey Cripps' Sunday school class and spray red carnations; Miss Grace Bailey's Sunday school class.

The interment was in the Washington cemetery, with the two sons, Milt and John Barnes, Frank Whitmer, Austin Sanders, Bert Truit and Carey Cripps, pallbearers.

Relatives here from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Bert Truit, Chillicothe, Mr. John Barnes, Columbus; Mrs. Shepard, Frankfort; Mr. and Mrs. Whitmer, Waterloo; Miss Elizabeth Garner, Springfield.

Orders taken for genuine Buff Orphington settings. $1 for 15 John Ducey, Bell phone 334 W. John St. 34 121

EPIDEMIC CEREBROSPINAL MENINGITIS.

The appearance of cerebrospinal meningitis in serious epidemic form in Texas and sporadically in numerous places in other states has intensified interest in this dangerous disease. In the last issue of the Public Health Reports is a timely paper by Dr. W. H. Frost which covers the history as well as our present knowledge of this disease. Through the studies of recent years four vital points concerning this disease have been practically settled, namely, the identification of the causative organism, the diagnosis by examination of the spinal fluid, its effective treatment by the antineuritis serum and the location of the infective agent in the nose and throat of those afflicted as well as on that of many healthy carriers. Fluegge says that healthy carriers are ten times more numerous than recognized cases of meningitis, and are more than ten times as prolific as a source of infection for others. It will thus be seen that a determination of all carriers by examination would be a most difficult matter, while the rigid quarantine of either houses or communities on account of cerebrospinal meningitis seems ordinarily unjustified. Bacteriologic examination for the purpose of discovering all carriers would be impracticable; and if this could be carried out they would be difficult of control. There are, however, some general measures that will undoubtedly aid in preventing the spread. Among them are the early diagnosis and isolation of suspected cases and prompt serum treatment, perhaps in special hospitals during epidemics. The following of proper hygienic regulations by individuals no doubt will aid. The infective agent is found only in human beings and is believed not to survive long after separation from the host. Notwithstanding this fact, however, its somewhat erratic spread during epidemics is still much of a mystery.

FARM WELFARE AND HUMAN WELFARE.

Sixty-two railroad trains, operated by officers of experimental stations of the Department of Agriculture, traveled over 35,000 miles during 1911. Public meetings held by these officers were attended by nearly 1,000,000 persons. Traveling schools to the number of 149 were attended by 40,000 farmers and farmers' boys. Farmers' institutes held 15,000 sessions, attended by 2,000,000 people. These interesting facts and many more appear in the annual report of the director of this department to Secretary Wilson, recently made public. A summary of this report appears in a current newspaper, and, by a peculiar coincidence, in the adjoining column is a summary of the mortality report of the Census Bureau for 1910, issued about the same time. From this it appears that in the "registration area" tuberculosis killed 86,309 persons in 1910, that 805,412 persons died in the same territory, and that in about one-half of the United States no effort is made to find out how many people die each year, to say nothing of running special trains and holding public meetings or schools to teach the people how to live.

Former

THE political parties and congress are the only channels through which we can work this reform. When an evil is national only the nation can end it, still countenanced. Today not six and child labor is a NATIONAL EVIL.

THOSE OPPOSED TO THE ABOLITION OF CHILD LABOR HAVE CRAFTILY SUGGESTED THAT IT BE LEFT TO THE VARIOUS STATES. THE STATES ARE POWERLESS TO DEAL WITH IT. THE STATES WERE POWERLESS EVEN AGAINST THE GYPSY MOTH AND HELPLESS BEFORE THE YELLOW FEVER GERM, WHICH KNEW NO STATE LINES.

The crazy quilt legislation of forty-seven different states CANNOT END THIS EVIL. If one state abolishes it carloads of its children are shipped into another where child labor is permitted. The business man of the former state, moreover, is by that very fact put under an unfair disadvantage as compared with the business man in the states where the ruinous cheap child labor is still countenanced. Today not six of the forty-seven states have good child labor laws. In most of them the child labor law is a mockery and an insult to the cause for which our country stands.

There should be enacted a national law BARRING FROM INTERSTATE COMMERCE ALL CHILD MADE GOODS or else taxing such goods prohibitively. That such a law was never enacted before is due to the tremendous influence of the powers of evil arrayed against the child labor movement—industries in which children are employed, the railroads that carry their products and the millions these command, which aggregate to no less than $1,000,000,000.

Bigelow Plan Side-Track

All offered a resolution declaring it to be the sense of the convention that no caucuses should be held. He moved a suspension of the rules, but under parliamentary practice he was prevented by Vice President Fess from speaking on his motion. On a division, 53 voted for suspension and 51 against. Lacking the necessary two-thirds, the motion was lost and the resolution went over until today.

OLD ORDINANCE VOID

Committee Tells Constitutional Delegates Document is Harmless.

Columbus, O., Feb. 8.—Judge Denis Dwyer of Montgomery county and Stanley Bowdle of Hamilton county, the lawyers of the judicial committee of the constitutional convention, as a special committee of investigation, signed a report in which they declare:

"The result of our investigations leads us to believe that there is nothing in the ordinance of 1787 to embarrass the deliberations or work of the fourth constitutional convention, and we are of the opinion that the work of the convention in revising, altering or amending the present constitution should proceed without embarrassing regard for the ordinance of 1787."

One Constitution Governs All.

"General principles, the report says, are based on these propositions: That one document, the United States constitution, governs the United States and the states as such; that all the states are equal and no other document can be binding upon them.

The report declares: "The fourth constitutional convention has nothing to fear from that ordinance so far as the United States supreme court or the national government are concerned."

Coming to the Boone case, it is held that the ordinance has been "altered by common consent," for which its own terms provide. It is held this was accomplished by adoption of new constitutions. Says the report:

"If the nation has assented to the alteration or abrogation of the ordinance—and it has—and if the original states have assented by the adoption of the federal constitution—and they have—then all that is lacking, in our judgment (if anything be lacking), is the assent of Ohio; and this we believe is effectively registered by a new constitution. We do not believe there is anything in the Boone case which necessarily conflicts with this view."

Road Proposal Held Up.

Columbus, O., Feb. 8.—Difference of opinion as to the proper method of building good roads, together with threatened opposition from a number of rural counties, prevented a vote on the Lampson proposal to amend the constitution that bonds may be issued for state highways. The convention will further consider the proposal in committee of the whole today, refusing to adopt Judge Dwyer's suggestion to lay over for two weeks.

When little yellowish pimples or watery blisters form on the hairy portions of the face and body, it is a sign of barber's itch, which is very contagious and if allowed to become chronic, is painful and produces permanent scars.

This disease is caused by a tiny parasite, and when treated by Saxon Salve, our new skin remedy, which permeates and saturates the skin, these parasites are killed, and the skin made healthy again.

Saxon Salve is wonderfully healing in all kinds of skin diseases and eruptions, such as salt rheum, tetter, eczema, ivy poisoning, etc., because it penetrates the skin and carries its purifying and healing ingredients to every portion of the diseased tissue.

It is guaranteed to satisfy you perfectly—we cheerfully give back your money if it does not. Blackmer & Tanquary, Druggists, Washington, C. H., Ohio.

Bigelow Plan Side-Tracked

Bill offered a resolution declaring it to be the sense of the convention that no caucuses should be held. He moved a suspension of the rules, but under parliamentary practice he was prevented by Vice President Fess from speaking on his motion. On a division, 53 voted for suspension and 51 against. Lacking the necessary two-thirds, the motion was lost and the resolution went over until today.

OLD ORDINANCE VOID

Committee Tells Constitutional Delegates Document is Harmless.

Columbus, O., Feb. 8.—Judge Denis Dwyer of Montgomery county and Stanley Bowdle of Hamilton county, the lawyers of the judicial committee of the constitutional convention, as a special committee of investigation, signed a report in which they declare:

"The result of our investigations leads us to believe that there is nothing in the ordinance of 1787 to embarrass the deliberations or work of the fourth constitutional convention, and we are of the opinion that the work of the convention in revising, altering or amending the present constitution should proceed without embarrassing regard for the ordinance of 1787."

One Constitution Governs All.

"General principles, the report says, are based on these propositions: That one document, the United States constitution, governs the United States and the states as such; that all the states are equal and no other document can be binding upon them.

The report declares: "The fourth constitutional convention has nothing to fear from that ordinance so far as the United States supreme court or the national government are concerned."

Coming to the Boone case, it is held that the ordinance has been "altered by common consent," for which its own terms provide. It is held this was accomplished by adoption of new constitutions. Says the report:

"If the nation has assented to the alteration or abrogation of the ordinance—and it has—and if the original states have assented by the adoption of the federal constitution—and they have—then all that is lacking, in our judgment (if anything be lacking), is the assent of Ohio; and this we believe is effectively registered by a new constitution. We do not believe there is anything in the Boone case which necessarily conflicts with this view."

Road Proposal Held Up.

Columbus, O., Feb. 8.—Difference of opinion as to the proper method of building good roads, together with threatened opposition from a number of rural counties, prevented a vote on the Lampson proposal to amend the constitution that bonds may be issued for state highways. The convention will further consider the proposal in committee of the whole today, refusing to adopt Judge Dwyer's suggestion to lay over for two weeks.

Constitutional Convention.

TAKES UP IMPORTANT MATTERS

Not Convinced That the Initiative and Referendum Would Be an Improvement On Present System of Government by Representatives. Believes Liquor Question Should Be Submitted Separately to the People—Good Roads, Home Rule For Municipalities and Other Subjects Reviewed.

Columbus, O., Feb. 8.—Governor Hudson Harmon today complied with the invitation extended to him some time ago by the delegates to the constitutional convention and addressed that body on the subject of constitutional and constitution making.

After thanking the delegates for the honor conferred, the governor said:

"The purpose of a constitution is to establish a government and mark out its general scope and design. As in this country it must be of the republican form, the authority to be exercised must be defined and limited, and provision be made for the selection of the officers who are to be entrusted with it. And that 'the consent of the governed,' which is the sole basis of such government, may be secured, these themselves select the persons who are to draft the instrument to be submitted for their acceptance.

"When the proposed government is to displace a like one of which the people have had full opportunity to judge by experience, it would be most unwise for its framers not to adopt, at the start, the features which have been found satisfactory, and not, by changes in these, risk the rejection of their work.

"Under each of the three successive governments we have had in Ohio our citizens have enjoyed, in very large measure, the benefits the founders had in view. During the 50 years the present government has existed we have successfully met all conditions of peace and war, prosperity and adversity, and seen Ohio become one of the great commonwealths of the world. As my experience with our present constitution increases the letter I like its general design and principal features. And I am certain we should all be glad to be assured that no less proud a record will be made under the new government, if your proposals meet with favor.

"Those yours will be a true constitution, like the one we have so long enjoyed, laying down concisely the fundamental law and leaving lighter matters to legislation. This will secure a clearer understanding of your proposals and make their approval more likely, because many would object to statutes masquerading as constitutional provisions not subject to the ordinary methods of amendment and repeal. For one essential of a constitution is stability through precautions against hasty and ill considered changes.

"But the statesmen and people of the past were not vain or unwise enough to believe that no improvement would ever become necessary or advisable in the governments they set up. The first was territorial, and therefore temporary by nature. The second provided for amendment at any time after four years of operation. The last not only permitted amendments at any time, but required the submission to the people every 20 years of the question whether there should be a convention for general revision, alteration or amendment.

"It would be folly to ignore the fact that the only time the people said 'yes' to this question they rejected by an overwhelming majority the proposal of the convention, though its membership ranked very high. Too many changes were made which were not only unnecessary, but worse, because they would have introduced uncertainty where numerous decisions and long practice had brought certainty.

"The present bill of rights as a whole is excellent, but some undue advantages against the state are given to persons charged with crime. These had their origin when governments were less restricted in power and authority and the accused was denied most of the means of defense he now enjoys. With the great changes on both sides of the case which go to his benefit the state finds itself too heavily handicapped in enforcing the laws.

"Under our changed conditions there is no reason why depositions should not be taken for the prosecution as well as for the defense, when the presence of witnesses at the trial can not be secured, as is very often the case through accident or design; nor why the accused should not stand trial when he has been acquitted through misconduct or error in his behalf, for which the verdict is set aside. And justice should be set free, on all sides, from the grasp of overstrained technicality.

The existing limitations of state indebtedness should not be changed except with respect to building a system of good roads. The need of this is great and the cost too heavy to be borne by present taxation. The improvement is permanent and its benefits are not confined to those who make it. So the expense may well be spread over a period of years by issuing bonds under a careful limit of amount, with proper provision for a sinking fund. It was with great regret that I felt bound to disapprove the good roads bill passed last year, because the large levy it made would have defeated the plans for tax reforms then under way, whose full success is now assured by the results of the first experience under them.

"Subject to strict limitation of the power to tax and incur indebtedness, as well as to the prohibition of lending their credit or otherwise engaging in any but strictly public enterprises, I think cities and villages should be left free to select their own form of government and manage their own local affairs.

"The board of public works should be abolished and replaced by an agency to be created by the general assembly and subject to its control.

Initiative and Referendum.
"I always keep an open mind for all proposals to make our government more efficient, economical and responsive to public needs. And I believe that within the safeguards of personal rights and other limitations they themselves impose by a constitution prepared and adopted with deliberate care, the people's will is the supreme law, which it should be made as easy as possible to declare and enforce.

"But I am not convinced that the initiative and referendum, applied generally to subjects of legislation, would be an improvement on our system of government by representatives, which, while it has shortcomings, like all human institutions, I do not believe has proved a failure.

"These shortcomings are doubtless the chief cause of the continued advocacy of direct legislation, and if it could be confined to their correction or prevention there would be less ground for doubt about the desirability of it. But it seems to be conceded that such limitation is not practicable.

"The measure is confessedly an experiment, and as several states have recently undertaken it, my attitude is like that of the man from Missouri. I have always found it wiser in matters of doubt, when I could, to profit by the experience of others rather than by my own.

"And no one can justly claim that this new departure in government has yet passed the experimental stage in other states, while, even if it has, none of them have so large or so diversified a population as Ohio or such a great variety of interests.

"A somewhat wide experience, as well as observation, has taught me that government, in all its branches, is a complicated and difficult business which requires careful study and close attention, besides the consideration of many things in the doing of each one. And my doubt is whether these essentials can or would be supplied by a large, busy and widely separated body of electors acting directly in matters of general legislation.

"It is a safe rule to judge others by one's self, and I gravely question whether, as a private citizen immersed in business and personal affairs, I should be able, however willing, to devote to a proposed measure, unless it were a very simple one involving no details, the study of its own provisions and of their effect on other laws or subjects, which is required to qualify one to take part in the important work of legislating for a great commonwealth. My action would lack the sanction of an oath to perform my duty to the best of my ability. I am certain I would not and could not give it the care and attention I now give to my part in the making of our laws. And I do not see how merely multiplying the number of private citizens in the like situation, without opportunity for conference or discussion with each other, could better the result.

"I believe the work of legislation can be properly done only by bodies small enough for each member to get the advantage of conference, debate and deliberation, with the concurrence of both required and absolute rules to prevent hasty action by either, as well as final approval by another and independent actor in the proceedings. This is one of the main features which made our government a broad and liberal democracy, but compatible with ingrained respect for parliamentary methods and constitutional checks, as it has been well described.

Opposed to Hasty Action.

"Of course if those agencies all prove incapable and corrupt, if for any reason they betray the confidence reposed in them by the people and fall under the control of special interests which seek advantages contrary to common right and injurious to the public, then the plan will miscarry. And this seems to have happened with alarming frequency in some of the states. But whatever the case may be or may have been elsewhere, Ohio has furnished no such example, even before the executive was given a voice in the making of her laws. I do not mean that we have had no bad legislation and no unworthy representatives; but these have been too rare to discredit the magnificent history of more than a hundred years. Our citizens have never enforced higher standards in the public service than they are doing now. So some other reason must be found to justify a change in our system which would throw off the checks and precautions against hasty and unwise legislation, which have been so carefully provided, and make the stump the seat of legislation.

"However, I believe that in actual practice, this change would not fully justify either the fears of its opponents or the hopes of its advocates. If it will work well anywhere it ought to do so in our municipalities. So, to add to discussion of it the argument of a test by our own citizens, I approved a bill at the last session to authorize it in them, though I am told it has not yet been resorted to anywhere.

"For myself, I think we should await the result of a fair trial in our cities and villages before making statewide the operation of so radical a change in our methods. But if the convention should decide to submit the question to the people, as I understand many members wish to do, it should be done separately. The provision should be so guarded as to prevent its being lightly invoked. The very heavy expense of special elections should be avoided, except in cases of unusually widespread and general demand. And, in view of its experimental character, resubmission to the people should be provided for, at the end of a reasonable period, without the formalities and delay generally required for amendments of the constitution.

The Liquor Traffic.

"Contention about methods of dealing with the liquor traffic has long disturbed the state and seriously interfered with the conduct of its government. Certainly no one will say our experience under the provision of our present constitution has been a happy one. But I think that, in the judgment of those who take a practical view of the matter, it has been shown that it is one for the application of the generally wholesome principle of local self-government. I believe the majority of the people of the state favor this method, because they have become familiar with it and have found how difficult it is to enforce a law prohibiting the traffic in any community where popular feeling is arrayed against it.

"Such a law is hard to enforce in any case, because in sales of liquor seller and buyer are both parties to them, so there is no unwilling victim to invoke the law, as in ordinary cases, and evidence is difficult to secure. But when the voters of a community, by lawful authority, forbid the traffic, public sentiment there will back their decision as nothing else can do.

"In localities where the voters permit the traffic the question arises, shall it be free to all who choose to engage in it and be conducted as they please, or shall there be restriction and regulation?

"Surely the wise course is to confine it to proper persons and subject it to careful regulation, as in other cases of occupations, which involve danger or are liable to abuse. Yet thus far we have free trade in intoxicating liquors in localities which have permitted their sale, because the constitution forbids the granting of licenses, which is taken to mean to individuals, because the right of communities to permit the traffic generally has been upheld. Yet only by requiring the particular persons who wish to engage in it to comply with certain conditions can the desired restriction and regulation be secured.

"I know the word 'license' is objectionable to many good citizens, because they think it means permission which implies approval of the traffic and they are opposed to both. But under the local plan the permission comes from the people of the community, when it comes at all. Some of them may approve the traffic, while others merely prefer to have it in the open rather than risk the notorious evils of secret dealing.

"At any rate the home rule principle takes away from 'license' the elements of permission and approval, to which objection is made, and leaves only that of regulation to which there is and can be none.

Suggests Separate Submission.

"Taxing the business has simply been license under another name and without the regulation which is the useful feature of license. And raising the tax from time to time has neither curtailed the traffic nor diminished its evils. On the contrary it has tended to make these worse by the temptation to improper practices in order to meet the higher charge.

"As it stands, the state really licenses everybody who pays the tax in localities where the traffic is permitted, no matter what his character or past career, without the right of revocation for any cause whatever, which is the best security against abuse.

"Letting the consent of the voters to the carrying on of the traffic in their midst and the payment of the tax operate as a permit to all persons is certainly a worse course than to require each one to take out a special permit with qualifications and conditions before he can engage in the business. And it must be plain to those who look the actual situation in the face that the choice lies between these two courses.

"It ought to be settled, one way or the other, by a provision of the constitution, so as to clear the way for the proper consideration by the general assembly of other things. To that end, I think the question should be separately submitted to the people, as was done when the present constitution was adopted, whether license shall or shall not be required as a condition to engaging in the traffic in localities where it is allowed."

Two Held For Murder

Nephew of Tiffin Man Bought Poison Day Before Death.

Tiffin, O., Feb. 8.—Charged with administering poison to Samuel Utz, 72, a wealthy real estate man of this city, James Utz, 32, and J. M. Fretz, a nurse, both of Fostoria, are in jail here. The elder Utz died last Saturday, pneumonia being given as the cause, but the discovery of burns on the dead man's mouth by Undertaker Kishler led to an investigation by the coroner. Traces of poison were found in the stomach and warrants for the arrest of the two men followed.

Poison records in Welding's drug store show that young Utz purchased a one-ounce phial of carbolic acid last Friday. According to the druggist, Utz said he wanted the acid for disinfecting purposes in his uncle's room. By the terms of a will executed in 1905, James Utz was made the sole beneficiary of his uncle's estate, which is estimated to be worth $150,000.

The provision should be so guarded as to prevent its being lightly invoked. The very heavy expense of special elections should be avoided, except in cases of unusually widespread and general demand. And, in view of its experimental character, resubmission to the people should be provided for, at the end of a reasonable period, without the formalities and delay generally required for amendments of the constitution.

The Liquor Traffic.

"Contention about methods of dealing with the liquor traffic has long disturbed the state and seriously interfered with the conduct of its government. Certainly no one will say our experience under the provision of our present constitution has been a happy one. But I think that, in the judgment of those who take a practical view of the matter, it has been shown that it is one for the application of the generally wholesome principle of local self-government. I believe the majority of the people of the state favor this method, because they have become familiar with it and have found how difficult it is to enforce a law prohibiting the traffic in any community where popular feeling is arrayed against it.

"Such a law is hard to enforce in any case, because in sales of liquor seller and buyer are both parties to them, so there is no unwilling victim to invoke the law, as in ordinary cases, and evidence is difficult to secure. But when the voters of a community, by lawful authority, forbid the traffic, public sentiment there will back their decision as nothing else can do.

"In localities where the voters permit the traffic the question arises, shall it be free to all who choose to engage in it and be conducted as they please, or shall there be restriction and regulation?

"Surely the wise course is to confine it to proper persons and subject it to careful regulation, as in other cases of occupations, which involve danger or are liable to abuse. Yet thus far we have free trade in intoxicating liquors in localities which have permitted their sale, because the constitution forbids the granting of licenses, which is taken to mean to individuals, because the right of communities to permit the traffic generally has been upheld. Yet only by requiring the particular persons who wish to engage in it to comply with certain conditions can the desired restriction and regulation be secured.

"I know the word 'license' is obnoxious to many good citizens, because they think it means permission which implies approval of the traffic and they are opposed to both. But under the local plan the permission comes from the people of the community, when it comes at all. Some of them may approve the traffic, while others merely prefer to have it in the open rather than risk the notorious evils of secret dealing.

"At any rate the home rule principle takes away from 'license' the elements of permission and approval, to which objection is made, and leaves only that of regulation to which there is and can be none.

Suggests Separate Submission.

"Taxing the business has simply been license under another name and without the regulation which is the useful feature of license. And raising the tax from time to time has neither curtailed the traffic nor diminished its evils. On the contrary it has tended to make these worse by the temptation to improper practices in order to meet the higher charge.

"As it stands, the state really licenses everybody who pays the tax in localities where the traffic is permitted, no matter what his character or past career, without the right of revocation for any cause whatever, which is the best security against abuse.

"Letting the consent of the voters to the carrying on of the traffic in their midst and the payment of the tax operate as a permit to all persons is certainly a worse course than to require each one to take out a special permit with qualifications and conditions before he can engage in the business. And it must be plain to those who look the actual situation in the face that the choice lies between these two courses.

"It ought to be settled, one way or the other, by a provision of the constitution, so as to clear the way for the proper consideration by the general assembly of other things. To that end, I think the question should be separately submitted to the people, as was done when the present constitution was adopted, whether license shall or shall not be required as a condition to engaging in the traffic in localities where it is allowed."

Two Held For Murder

Nephew of Tiffin Man Bought Poison Day Before Death.

Tiffin, O., Feb. 8.—Charged with administering poison to Samuel Utz, 72, a wealthy real estate man of this city, James Utz, 32, and J. M. Pretz, a nurse, both of Fostoria, are in jail here. The elder Utz died last Saturday, pneumonia being given as the cause, but the discovery of burns on the dead man's mouth by Undertaker Kishler led to an investigation by the coroner. Traces of poison were found in the stomach and warrants for the arrest of the two men followed.

Poison records in Welding's drug store show that young Utz purchased a one-ounce phial of carbolic acid last Friday. According to the druggist, Utz said he wanted the acid for disinfecting purposes in his uncle's room. By the terms of a will executed in 1905, James Utz was made the sole beneficiary of his uncle's estate, which is estimated to be worth $150,000.

SHOCKING SOUNDS

In the earth are sometimes heard before a terrible earthquake, that warn of the coming peril. Nature's warnings are kind. That dull pain or ache in the back warns you the kidneys need attention if you would escape those dangerous maladies, Dropsy, Diabetes or Bright's disease. Take Electric Bitters at once and see backache fly and all your best feelings return. "My son received great benefit from their use for kidney and bladder trouble," writes Peter Bondy, South Richmond, Mich. "It is certainly a great kidney medicine." Try it. 50 cents at Blackmer & Tanquary.

Youth Says Act Committed to Save Mothers' Life.

Cleveland, Feb. 8.—That he shot and killed his father in the defense of his mother, sister and himself was the plea of James Hurst, Jr., 23, when arraigned in court on a charge of murder. At the inquest, Mrs. James Hurst, sr., and Miss Hettie Hurst, her daughter, will tell a story of abuse and the police say of numerous threats against their lives at the hands of the husband and father, James Hurst, a ship carpenter.

BLAMED A GOOD WORKER.

"I blamed my heart for severe distress in my left side for two years," writes W. Evans, Danville, Va., "but I know now it was indigestion, as Dr. King's New Life Pills completely cured me." Best for stomach, liver and kidney troubles, constipation, headache or debility. 25c at Blackmer & Tanquary.

Held For Murder

Cincinnati Police Nab Man Who Says He Slugged Cleveland Striker.

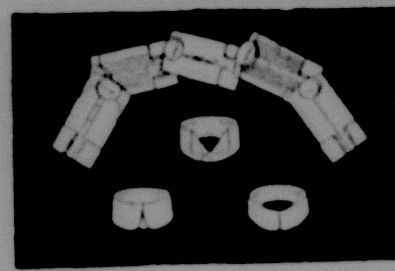

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 8.—Jacob Madorsky, arrested with Isadore Benjamin, charged with being implicated in the murder of Morris Gelbman, a striking garment worker in Cleveland last July, is said to have made a full confession to the police. In the confession Madorsky said he did not belong to the cloak makers' union, but only worked for the union crowd. He said he was paid $26.50 a week for three weeks for the slugging, and that a prominent labor leader gave him $50 and told him to get into Canada.

Horse Notes

BY AVOOD

The wonderful pacing gelding, Major Mallow, has won 42 heats in better than 2:10, over the half-mile tracks, a world's record.

A C. Henkle owns a very clever pair of trotting stallions in the full brothers, McKinney A C (4) 2:27 1-4 and Buster Russell (4) 2:29 1-4 by Wallace McKinney, 2:26 1-4, and out of a mare by Simmons Jr., that is the dam of Carnation, 2:11 1-4. Mr. Henkle intends to give both his trotters a thorough preparation this year and no doubt they will make a showing worth while.

Oscar Valery, Derby, a four-year-old trotting filly, Miss Phillips, by Bay Wreath dam Waitress (tr) 2:28, by Egoist, 2:22 1-4, that should prove a prospect for the slow trots this year, as last season with very little work, she trailed three different miles in better than 2:22.

Fred Mabry, of Jeffersonville, winner of three straight races out of four starts last season with the pacing gelding, Judge Larriek, 2:11 1-4, expects to be out after the coin early in 1912, with his fast pacer. It is said that Judge Larriek showed a mile below the 2:10 mark last season and it is likely that he will be heard from this year in the 2:12 events.

Ben Burns, 2:11 1-4, one of the new performers to the credit of Bobby Burns, 2:19 1-4, is out of the extremely fast pacing mare, Bessie Coastman, 2:19 1-4, formerly owned and raced by Mart Morris, of Bloomingburg.

One of the much talked of phenomenal trotters for the stakes in the Grand Circuit, this year, is the six-year-old mare, Dorothy M., by Glenwood M, in the stable of Mitchell Bros. of Findlay. She showed on several occasions last year that she is a fast trotter, making, among other efforts, a mile in 2:08, over a mile oval and in 2:14 over a two lap course. Her owners are said to have refused an offer of $6000.

PUBLIC SALE

The undersigned will offer for sale at public auction at the late residence of Kate Carl, deceased, at 303 East Court street, Washington C. H., O., on Monday, the 12th Day of February

1912, the goods and chattels of said deceased, consisting in part of household goods, heating and gasoline stoves, bed clothing, chairs, tables, bed and springs, wardrobe, dresser, lady's gold watch, and other articles of personal and household effects. Said sale will commence at 10 o'clock in the forenoon. Terms of sale cash.

The capital stock of the society was fixed at not to exceed $100,000.

The facts are as given above, and whether a mistake in the date has been made of the organization as mentioned on the seal, remains to be seen.

High Class Horses

The public sale of D. C. Fent north of Jeffersonville, who on February 16th, will dispose of a large number of choice horses, is attracting widespread attention because of the classy horses consigned to the sale.

A Xenia horseman has offered Mr. Fent $700 for one team and $600 for another since they were consigned to the sale, but no sales were made and the animals go into the sale without strings attached.

Seriously Injured In Gas Explosion

Henry Auch, father of Ralph H. Auch, of the Wear-U-Well Shoe Co. of this city, was seriously injured in an explosion of gas in his office in Chillicothe Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Auch had entered the large concrete safety vault in search of some papers, when an accumulation of gas, which had escaped from a nearby main exploded tearing the vault almost to pieces and shaking the entire block.

Mr. Auch was burned about the face, head and hands and others in the office were injured.

DOINGS IN OHIO

Will Abolish State Job

Columbus, O., Feb. 8.—James P. Madigan, auditor of the state tax commission is to resign, effective March 1, and his position will be abolished, according to announcement of the commission. It was stated his resignation was requested at the request of the Cuyahoga county Democratic organization, which opposed him because he fought Mayor Baker last fall.

Waives Right to Jury Trial.

Columbus, O., Feb. 8.—Robert, alias C. C. Schmitt, was arraigned in criminal court when he changed his plea of not guilty to first degree murder, for which he was indicted, to a general plea of guilty of homicide. He waived his right to a trial by jury. The evidence in his case will be heard Feb. 15 and sentence passed. Schmitt killed Amos Joiner, a negro, in an argument over Socialism on Jan. 1, in a South Side saloon.

Coffee Has Bad Effect.

Columbus, O., Feb. 8.—After drinking 17 cups of coffee within an hour, William Messerschmidt attempted to carve his mother to pieces with a pocket knife and defied officers with a knife, an ax and a shotgun. He was finally overpowered and taken to the city prison, where he made an unsuccessful attempt at suicide by strangling himself with a handkerchief.

Dies With Fortune in Sight.

Zanesville, O., Feb. 8.—On the eve of prosperity, Robert Donald died in the Washington county infirmary, bequeathing the fact that he could not live long enough to enjoy the fortune that he knew was coming to him. The settlement of an estate which, it is estimated, would net Donald $300,000, is now in court.

Ohio Troops May Take Field.

Columbus, O., Feb. 8.—In a private communication the war department at Washington notified Adjutant General Weybreht that in the event of real hostilities along the Mexican border, the Ohio militia might be called upon for service.

Blamed for Blindness.

Columbus, O., Feb. 8.—"Ignorant midwives are responsible for most infantile blindness," says the state medical board in its sixteenth annual report.

Dorothy Arnold Still Missing.

New York, Feb. 8.—Dorothy Arnold has not been found. A police report that the missing girl was on a train which left Philadelphia for this city proved to be incorrect. Francis R. Arnold, the girl's father, and two detectives went to meet the train, but could find no trace of Miss Arnold.

Duke Prefers United States to Own Ancestral Acres.

As Usual, He Is Making His Headquarters at a Local Club, and Likewise Spending Much Time in Other Cities.

New York—Millions upon millions of educated people on both sides of the Atlantic are convinced that there is no more agreeable existence in the world than that of a British duke, possessed of a fortune adequate to his rank, as well as of some of those grand old ancestral country seats—palaces rather than mansions—that are the glory of England.

That an English duke, who has one of the finest country seats, in perhaps the most beautiful part of England, and in the enjoyment of a large fortune, with no cares and incumbrances above all with no blemishes of character calculated to impair in the slightest degree the respect accorded to his rank, should prefer life in the United States—not the exciting and adventurous existence of the plains and of the far west—but that of the ordinary, well-to-do citizen—will appear to many as a ground for astonishment.

The peer in question is the duke of Newcastle, who has arrived here with the intention of remaining until near Easter, making his headquarters, as usual, at the Metropolitan club in New York, but likewise spending a fair portion of his time in Philadelphia, where he has many intimate friends. He has been coming over here like this for some twelve years past, that is to say, spending three and even four months of every twelve on this side of the Atlantic, living quietly, mingling but little with the "smart set," but seeing much of his numerous friends.

The duke of Newcastle was, during his minority, a ward of William E. Gladstone and, thanks to the careful management of his estates by the great Liberal statesman, he found himself, when he came of age, rid of all the financial difficulties which had darkened his father's life and broken his spirit. He came into possession of a large sum of ready money, and of extremely valuable estates free from all incumbrances.

While the duke devotes himself to photography, to pile fishing—he has had the finest of that kind of sport in England in the great lake and river at Clumber, landing on one occasion a forty-pounder, which, stuffed, now occupies a place of honor in his library—and to the interests of the Anglican church, the duchess, as befits a daughter of the late Major "Sugar" Candy of that fine old sporting regiment, the Ninth Lancers, has her time fully occupied with hunting and the breeding of horses and dogs. She has long acted as master of the hounds of the race, hunt known as the Clumber Harriers, associated for generations with the dukedom of Newcastle, and in the dog world she is celebrated as one of the best judges and breeders in the United Kingdom.

The duchess, who was married at the age of nineteen, spends the greater part of the year at Clumber, and although the duke has his hobbies and pursuits, and the duchess hers, and although they have no children, yet they are the best of friends, even if not a particularly united couple, their respective interests keeping them often apart for months together. The next heir to the dukedom and to Clumber is Lord Francis Hope, who, since divorcing the American music hall artist, May Yohe, has married an Australian divorcee, by whom he has a son, aged five.

"L" Conductor Falls to Death.

Chicago—Opening a gate on a South Side elevated train and leaning far out to ascertain why the train had been suddenly stopped by a block signal the other afternoon, Daniel Harris, thirty-two years old, a conductor, was thrown from the train when it suddenly lurched forward and instantly killed by a plunge into the alley below. Harris was dead when found a short time later.

Horse Notes

BY AVOOD

The wonderful pacing gelding, Major Mallow, has won 12 heats in better than 2:19, over the half-mile tracks, a world's record.

A C. Henkle owns a very clever pair of trotting stallions in the full brothers, McKinney A C (4) 2:27 1-4 and Buster Russell (4) 2:29 1-4 by Wallace McKinney, 2:26 1-4, and out of a mare by Simmons Jr., that is the dam of Carnation, 2:11 1-4. Mr. Henkle intends to give both his trotters a thorough preparation this year and no doubt they will make a showing worth while.

Oscar Valery, Derby, a four-year-old trotting filly, Miss Phillips by Bay Wreath dam Waitress (tr) 2:28, by Egoist, 2:22 1-4, that should prove a prospect for the slow trots this year, as last season with very little work, she trailed three different miles in better than 2:22.

Fred Mabry, of Jeffersonville, winner of three straight races out of four starts last season with the pacing gelding, Judge Larrick, 2:11 1-4, expects to be out after the coin early in 1912, with his fast pacer. It is said that Judge Larrick showed a mile below the 2:10 mark last season and it is likely that he will be heard from this year in the 2:12 events.

Ben Burns, 2:11 1-4, one of the new performers to the credit of Bobby Burns, 2:19 1-4, is out of the extremely fast pacing mare, Bessie Coastman, 2:19 1-4, formerly owned and raced by Mart Morris, of Bloomingburg.

One of the much talked of phenomenal trotters for the stakes in the Grand Circuit, this year, is the six-year-old mare, Dorothy M., by Glenwood M, in the stable of Mitchell Bros. of Findlay. She showed on several occasions last year that she is a fast trotter, making, among other efforts, a mile in 2:08, over a mile oval and in 2:14 over a two lap course. Her owners are said to have refused an offer of $6000.

The capital stock of the society was fixed at not to exceed $100,000.

The facts are as given above, and whether a mistake in the date has been made of the organization as mentioned on the seal, remains to be seen.

High Class Horses

The public sale of D. C. Fent north of Jeffersonville, who on February 16th, will dispose of a large number of choice horses, is attracting widespread attention because of the classy horses consigned to the sale.

A Xenia horseman has offered Mr. Fent $700 for one team and $600 for another since they were consigned to the sale, but no sales were made and the animals go into the sale without strings attached.

Seriously Injured In Gas Explosion

Henry Auch, father of Ralph H. Auch, of the Wear-U-Well Shoe Co. of this city, was seriously injured in an explosion of gas in his office in Chillicothe Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Auch had entered the large concrete safety vault in search of some papers, when an accumulation of gas, which had escaped from a nearby main exploded tearing the vault almost to pieces and shaking the entire block.

Mr. Auch was burned about the face, head and hands and others in the office were injured.

DOINGS IN OHIO

Will Abolish State Job.
Columbus, O., Feb. 8.—James P. Madigan, auditor of the state tax commission, is to resign, effective March 1, and his position will be abolished, according to announcement of the commission. It was stated his resignation was requested at the request of the Cuyahoga county Democratic organization, which opposed him because he fought Mayor Baker last fall.

Waives Right to Jury Trial.
Columbus, O., Feb. 8.—Robert, alias V. C. Schmitt, was arraigned in criminal court when he changed his plea of not guilty to first degree murder, for which he was indicted, to a general plea of guilty of homicide. He waived his right to a trial by jury. The evidence in his case will be heard Feb. 15 and sentence passed. Schmitt killed Amos Joiner, a negro, in an argument over Socialism on Jan. 1, in a South Side saloon.

Coffee Has Bad Effect.
Columbus, O., Feb. 8.—After drinking 17 cups of coffee within an hour, William Messerschmidt attempted to carve his mother to pieces with a pocket knife and defied officers with the knife, an ax and a shotgun. He was finally overpowered and taken to the city prison, where he made an unsuccessful attempt at suicide by strangling himself with a handkerchief.

Dies With Fortune in Sight.
Zanesville, O., Feb. 8.—On the eve of prosperity Robert Donald died in the Washington county infirmary, bequeathing the fact that he could not live long enough to enjoy the fortune that he knew was coming to him. The settlement of an estate which, it is estimated, would net Donald $300,000, is now in court.

Ohio Troops May Take Field.
Columbus, O., Feb. 8.—In a private communication the war department at Washington notified Adjutant General Weyburn that in the event of real hostilities along the Mexican border, the Ohio militia might be called upon for service.

Blamed for Blindness.
Columbus, O., Feb. 8.—"Ignorant midwives are responsible for most infantile blindness," says the state medical board in its sixteenth annual report.

Dorothy Arnold Still Missing.
New York, Feb. 8.—Dorothy Arnold has not been found. A police report that the missing girl was on a train which left Philadelphia for this city proved to be incorrect. Francis R. Arnold, the girl's father, and two detectives went to meet the train, but could find no trace of Miss Arnold.

CHAPTER III.

Trouble at Scratch Hill. Captain Murrell had established himself at Balaam's Cross Roads. He was supposed to be interested in the purchase of a plantation, and in company with Crenshaw visited the numerous tracts of land which the merchant owned; but though he professed delight with the country, he was plainly in no haste to become committed to any one of the several propositions Crenshaw was eager to submit.

"The Barony would have suited me," he told Bladen one day. They had just returned from an excursion into the country and were seated in the lawyer's office.

"You say your father was a friend of the old general's?" said Bladen.

"Years ago, in the north—yes," answered Murrell.

Murrell regarded the lawyer in silence for a moment out of his deeply sunk eyes.

"Too bad about the boy," he said at length slowly.

"How do you mean, Captain?" asked Bladen.

"I mean it's a pity he has no one except Yancy to look after him," said Murrell; but Bladen showed no interest and Murrell went on: "Has Yancy any legal claim on the boy?"

"No, certainly not; the boy was merely left with Yancy because Crenshaw didn't know what else to do with him."

"Get possession of him, and if I don't buy land here I'll take him west with me," said Murrell quietly. "I am willing to spend five hundred dollars on this if necessary."

"I'll have to think your proposition over," said Bladen.

The immediate result of this conversation was that within twenty-four hours a man driving two horses hitched to a light buggy arrived at Scratch Hill in quest of Bob Yancy, whom he found at dinner and to whom he delivered a letter. Mr. Yancy was profoundly impressed by the attention, for holding the letter at arm's length, he said:

"Well, sir, I've lived high on to forty years, but I never got a piece of writing before—never, sir. People, if they was close by, spoke to me, if at a distance they hollered, but none of 'em ever wrote."

"What's your answer?" demanded the stranger.

"You tell him I'll be monstrous glad to talk it over with him any time he fancies to come out here."

The next day Yancy had occasion to visit Balaam's Cross Roads. Crenshaw gave him a disquieting opinion as to the probable contents of his letter, for he himself saw near to Bladen that he had decided to assume the care of the boy.

"I reckon Bladen will have the law on his side, Bob!"

the patriarch was a stranger.

"Howdy, Charley. Here, Bob Yancy, you shake hands with Bruce Carrington," commanded Uncle Sammy. At the name both Yancy and Balaam manifested interest. They saw a man in the early twenties, clean-limbed and broad-shouldered, with a handsome face and shapely head. "Yes, sir, hit's a grandson of Tom Carrington that used to own the grist-mill down at the Forks."

"Where you located at, Mr. Carrington?" asked Yancy. But Carrington was not given a chance to reply. Uncle Sammy saved him the trouble.

"Back in Kentucky. He takes rafts down the river to New Orleans, then he comes back on ships to Baltimore, or else he hoots it north overland. He wants to visit the Forks," he added.

"I'm shortly goin' that way myself, Mr. Carrington, and I'll be pleased of your company—but first I got to get through with Bob Yancy," said Balaam, and again he produced the warrant. "If agreeable to you, Bob, I'll ask Uncle Sammy to read this here warrant."

"Who's been a-warrantin' Bob Yancy?" cried Uncle Sammy.

"Dave Blount has."

"I knowed hit—I knowed he'd try to get even! What's the charge agin you, Bob?"

"Read hit," said Balaam. "Why, sho—can't you read plain writin', Uncle Sammy?" for the patriarch was showing signs of embarrassment.

"If you gentlemen will let me—" said Carrington pleasantly. After a moment's scrutiny of the paper that Balaam had thrust in his hand, Carrington began:

"To the Sheriff of the County of Cumberland: Greetings:

"Whereas, it is alleged that a murderous assault has been committed on one David Blount, of Fayetteville, by Robert Yancy, of Scratch Hill, said Blount sustaining numerous bruises and contusions, to his great injury of body and mind; and, whereas, it is further alleged that said murderous assault was wholly unprovoked and without cause, you will forthwith take into custody the person of said Yancy, of Scratch Hill, charged with having inflicted the bruises and contusions herein set forth in the complaint of said Blount, and instantly bring him into our presence to answer to these and several crimes and misdemeanors. You are empowered to seize said Yancy wherever he may be at; whether on the hillside or in the valley, eating or sleeping, or at rest.

"DE LANCY BALAAM, Magistrate.

"Fourth District, County of Cumberland, State of North Carolina. Done this twenty-fourth day of May, 1835.

"P. S.—Dear Bob: Dave Blount says he ain't able to chew his meat. I thought you'd be glad to know."

Smilingly Carrington folded the warrant and handed it to Yancy.

"Well, what are you goin' to do about hit, Bob?" inquired Balaam.

"Maybe I'd ought to go. I'd like to oblige the squire," said Yancy.

"Suppose I come to the Cross Roads this evening?"

"That's agreeable," said the deputy, who presently departed in company with Carrington.

Some hours later the male population of Scratch Hill, with a gravity befitting the occasion, prepared itself to descend on the Cross Roads and give its support to Mr. Yancy in his hour of need. Even Uncle Sammy, who had not been off the Hill in years, announced that no consideration of fatigue would keep him away from the scene of action, and Yancy loaned him his mule and cart for the occasion. Yancy led the straggling procession, with the boy trotting by his side, his little sunburned fist clasped in the man's great hand.

The squire's court held its infrequent sittings in the best room of the Balaam homestead, a double cabin of hewn logs. Here Scratch Hill was gratified with a view of Mr. Blount's battered visage.

"What's all this here fuss between you and Bob Yancy?" demanded the squire when he had administered the oath to Blount. Mr. Blount's statement was brief and very much to the point.

"He done give me the order from the judge of the co't—I was to show it to Bob Yancy—"

"Got that order?" demanded the squire sharply. With a smile, damaged, but clearly a smile, Blount produced the order. "Him—appointed guardian of the boy—" the squire was presently heard to murmur. The crowded room was very still now, and more than one pair of eyes were turned pityingly in Yancy's direction. When the long arm of the law reached out from Fayetteville, where there was a real judge and a real sheriff, it clothed itself with terrors.

"Well, Mr. Blount, what did you do with this here order?" asked the squire.

"I showed Yancy the order—" said Yancy. "But I can't say as it would have made no difference, squire. He'd have taken his licking just the same and I'd have had my nevy out of that buggy!"

"Didn't he say nothing about this here order from the co't, Bob?"

"There wa'n't much conversation, squire. I invited my nevy to light down, and then I snaked Dave Blount out over the wheel."

"Who struck the first blow?"

"He did. He struck at me with his buggy whip."

Squire Balaam removed his spectacles and leaned back in his chair.

"It's the opinion of this here co't that the whole question of assault rests on whether Bob Yancy saw the order. Bob Yancy swears he didn't see it, while Dave Blount swears he showed it to him. If Bob Yancy didn't know of the existence of the order he was clearly actin' on the idea that Blount was stealin' his nevy, and he done what any one would have done under the circumstances. If, on the other hand, he knewed of this order from the co't, he was not only guilty of assault, but he was guilty of resistin' an officer of the co't."

The squire paused impressively. His audience drew a long breath.

"Can a body drap a word here?" It was Uncle Sammy's thin voice that cut into the silence.

"Certainly, Uncle Sammy. This here co't will always admire to listen to you."

"Well, I'd like to say that I consider that Fayetteville co't mighty efficacious with its orders. This part of the county won't take nothin' off Fayetteville! We don't interfere with Fayetteville, and blamed if we'll let Fayetteville interfere with us!"

There was a murmur of approval. Scratch Hill remembered the rifles in its hands and took comfort.

"The Fayetteville co't air a higher co't than this, Uncle Sammy," explained the squire indulgently.

"I'm awere of that," snapped the patriarch. "I've seen hit's steeple."

"Air you finished, Uncle Sammy?" asked the squire deferentially.

"I low I am. But I low that if this here case is goin' again Bob Yancy I'd recommend him to go home and not listen to no mo' foolishness."

"Mr. Yancy will oblige this co't by setting still while I finish this case," said the squire with dignity. "Mr. Yancy has sworn to one thing, Mr. Blount to another. Now the Yancys air an old family in these parts; Mr. Blount's folks air strangers. Consequently," pursued the squire, somewhat vindictively, "we ain't had any time in which to form an opinion of the Blounts; but for myself, I'm suspicious of folks that keep movin' about and who don't seem able to get located permanent nowhere, who air here today and away tomorrow. But you can't say that of the Yancys. They air an old family in the country, and naturally this co't feels obliged to accept a Yancy's word before the word of a stranger. And, in view of the fact that the defendant did not seek litigation, but was perfectly satisfied to let matters rest where they was, it is right and just that all costs should fall on the plaintiff."

MANY PRETTY GIRLS

Mexican Town Has 3,000 of Them and Only 500 Men.

Although Amazonian in Tendencies and Assume All Hardships, There Are Many Beautiful Young Ladies Among Them.

Mexico City.—There is a town in Southern Mexico which boasts 3,000 women and but 500 men. Not only this but the women have the reputation of being the prettiest in the world. They are not only pretty but they are Amazonian in their tendencies and assume all the hardships of life as well as the responsibility of finance and municipal government. In fact this south Mexican town, Tehuantepec by name, is the place of them all most dominated by the influence of woman, yet the region in which most deference is paid to man. The cause of all of which being the discrepancy in the numbers of the two sexes.

Tehuantepec is on the isthmus of the same name at the point where Mexico is narrowest just above Yucatan. The town is at the highest point where the waters of the Atlantic are separated from those of the Pacific. It is an Indian town and its inhabitants were living comfortably here when Europe knew not of the existence of America. They are a handsome, clean, intelligent, prosperous people who today lead lives that might be envied by the effete in the cities that are termed most civilized.

The first impression of the tourist is the beauty of the women. Near the station of the railway that was two years ago completed across this isthmus, is the market place in the center of the town. Here are the women selling their goods. No man is to be seen. About the market place are stores and in these also woman is supreme. It is impossible to find a man about the place engaged in any sort of activity. The women think too much of the men to allow them to work.

It is because of tribal wars and the cruelty of the Diaz regime that the men of the tribe are almost extinct.

DEATH COMES TO SEEKER

Man Who Asked Permit to Kill His Wife and Family Dies Soon After Getting Work.

Louisville, Ky.—Death which he so eagerly sought a few weeks ago while out of work came unexpectedly to John M. McCord the other day when he was killed at one of the barns of the Louisville Street Railway company, where he had secured employment only a few days ago.

A few weeks ago McCord walked into the office of Prosecuting Attorney Harry Robinson of the police court and startled that official by asking to be given a permit to kill his wife and three children and end his own life.

He said he has been without work for a number of months and that his family was in destitute circumstances.

Having tried in vain to secure work, McCord said he had concluded to kill his family and then end his own life, but he did not wish to break any law in so doing and desired to know if he could not secure a permit that would legalize the act.

McCord was placed in custody, but was later released after the authorities had investigated conditions at the man's home and supplied the immediate wants of his family.

A few days ago McCord secured employment washing cars in one of the barns of the Louisville Street Railway company. Yesterday afternoon he was struck by a car backing into the barn and knocked into a repair pit, receiving injuries that resulted in death a few minutes later.

Thought It Was Coffee Until Wife Told Him!

ONE day the wife of a prominent Ohio man served Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH instead of coffee for dinner.

Her husband was very particular about his coffee. She didn't say anything about the change.

What was her astonishment as the meal passed and her husband didn't discover a difference.

He simply asked for an extra cup and remarked that "the coffee" was unusually good.

For ten months he drank Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH before he knew it. And then his wife told him!

Fitch's Grains of Health

The Coffee Substitute With the Coffee Taste

is the only substitute for coffee which smells like coffee—tastes like coffee—has all the coffee satisfaction—without a single bad effect of coffee.

People who dare not touch coffee, can drink all they want of Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH. It is good for them. Doctors recommend it.

In Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH a special high-grade blend of coffee is so combined with roots, herbs and vegetables that the caffeine is counteracted. It is a health drink! Try a package today.

Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH is sold by all leading grocers. The price is 30 cents the pound package. It is ground. Ready for use. It is just as easy to prepare as coffee—but only half as much Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH is required as coffee—a teaspoonful to a cup. Therefore it really costs only half as much as good coffee.

If your grocer cannot supply you, write us, mentioning his name, and we will send you a generous sample package of Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH (enough to serve a large family at breakfast) and a booklet telling you all about Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH. Enclose 6 cents in stamps for postage.

"The law be damned—I got what's fair on mine. I don't wish for better than that," exclaimed Yancy, over his shoulder. He strode from the store and started down the sandy road at a brisk run. Miserable forebodings of an impending tragedy leaped up within him, and the miles were many that lay between him and the Hill.

As he breasted the slope he came within sight of a little group in his own dooryard. Saving only Uncle Sammy Bellamy, the group resolved itself into the women and children of the Hill, but there was one small figure he missed. The patriarch hurried toward him, leaning on his cane.

"They've took your neevy, Bob!" he cried in a high, thin voice.

"Who's took him?" asked Yancy hoarsely.

"Hit were Dave Blount. Get your gun, Bob, and go after him—kill the miserable sneaking cuss!" cried Uncle Sammy. "By the Fayetteville Road, Bob, not ten minutes ago—you can cut him off at Ox Road forks!"

Yancy breathed a sigh of relief. A rifle was placed in Yancy's hands.

"Thank you all kindly," said Yancy, and turning away he struck off through the pine woods. A brisk walk of twenty minutes brought him to the Ox Road forks.

He had not long to wait, for presently the buggy hove in sight. As the buggy came nearer he recognized his ancient enemy in the person of the man who sat at Hannibal's side, and stepping into the road seized the horses by their bits. At sight of him Hannibal shrieked his name in delight.

"Uncle Bob—Uncle Bob—" he cried.

"Yes, it's Uncle Bob. You can light down, Neevy."

"Leggo them horses!" said Mr. Blount.

"Light down, Neevy," said Yancy, still pleasantly.

Hannibal instantly availed himself of the invitation. At the same moment Blount struck at Yancy with his whip, and his horses reared wildly, thinking the blow meant for them. Seeing that the boy had reached the ground in safety, Yancy relaxed his hold on the team, which instantly plunged forward. Then as the buggy swept past him he made a grab at Blount and dragged him out over the wheels into the road, where he proceeded to fetch Mr. Blount a smack in the jaw. Then with a final skillful kick he sent Mr. Blount sprawling.

"Don't let me catch you around these diggings again, Dave Blount, or I swear to God I'll be the death of you!"

Hannibal rode home through the pine woods in triumph on his Uncle Bob's mighty shoulders.

CHAPTER IV.

Law at Halaam's Cross Roads.

But Mr. Yancy was only at the beginning of his trouble. Three days later there appeared on the borders of Scratch Hill a gentleman armed with a rifle. It was Charley Balaam, old Squire Balaam's nephew.

"Can I see you friendly, Bob Yancy?" Balaam demanded with the lungs of a stentor, sheltering himself behind the thick bole of a sweetgum, for he observed that Yancy held his rifle in the crook of his arm.

"I reckon you can, Charley Balaam, if you are friendly," said Yancy.

"I'm a-going to trust you, Bob," said Balaam. And forsaking the shelter of the sweetgum he shuffled up the slope.

"How are you, Charley?" asked Yancy, as they shook hands.

"Only just tolerable, Bob. You've been warranted—Dave Blount swore hit on to you." He displayed a sheet of paper covered with much writing and decorated with a large seal.

"Read it," he said mildly. Balaam scratched his head.

"I don't know that hit's my duty to do that, Bob. Hit's my duty to serve it on to you."

the patriarch was a stranger.

"Howdy, Charley. Here, Bob Yancy, you shake hands with Bruce Carrington," commanded Uncle Sammy. At the name both Yancy and Balaam manifested interest. "He done give me the order from the judge of the co't—I was to show it to Bob Yancy."

"Get that order!" demanded the squire sharply. With a smile, Blount produced the order. "Now—your friend, the judge of the co't—"

"The judge of the co't—"

crowded room was very still now, and more than one pair of eyes were turned pityingly in Yancy's direction. When the long arm of the law reached out from Fayetteville, where there was a real judge and a real sheriff, it clothed itself with terrors.

"Well, Mr. Blount, what did you do with this here order?" asked the squire.

"I showed Yancy the order—" "You lie, Dave Blount; you didn't!" said Yancy. "But I can't say as it would have made no difference, squire. He'd have taken his licking just the same and I'd have had my neevy out of that buggy!"

"Didn't he say nothing about this here order from the co't, Bob?"

"There wa'n't much conversation, squire. I invited my neevy to light down, and then I snaked Dave Blount out over the wheel."

"Who struck the first blow?"

"He did. He struck at me with his buggy whip."

Squire Balaam removed his spectacles and leaned back in his chair.

"It's the opinion of this here co't that the whole question of assault rests on whether Bob Yancy saw the order. Bob Yancy swears he didn't see it, while Dave Blount swears he showed it to him. If Bob Yancy didn't know of the existence of the order he was clearly actin' on the idea that Blount was stealin' his neevy, and he done what any one would have done under the circumstances. It, on the other hand, he knewed of this order from the co't, he was not only guilty of assault, but he was guilty of resistin' an officer of the co't." The squire paused impressively. His audience drew a long breath.

"Can a body drop a word here?"

It was Uncle Sammy's thin voice that cut into the silence.

"Certainly, Uncle Sammy. This here co't will always admire to listen to you."

"Well, I'd like to say that I consider that Fayetteville co't mighty officious with its orders. This part of the county won't take nothin' off Fayetteville! We don't interfere with Fayetteville, and blamed if we'll let Fayetteville interfere with us!" There was a murmur of approval. Scratch Hill remembered the rifles in its hands and took comfort.

"The Fayetteville co't air a higher co't than this, Uncle Sammy," explained the squire indulgently.

"I'm a-weer of that," snapped the patriarch. "I've seen hit's steeple."

"Air you finished, Uncle Sammy?" asked the squire deferentially.

"I low I am. But I low that if this here case is goin' again Bob Yancy I'd recommend him to go home and not listen to no mo' foolishness."

"Mr. Yancy will oblige this co't by setting still while I finish this case," said the squire with dignity. "Mr. Yancy has sworn to one thing, Mr. Blount to another. Now the Yancys air an old family in these parts; Mr. Blount's folks air strangers. Consequently," pursued the squire, somewhat vindictively, "we ain't had any time in which to form an opinion of the Blounts; but for myself, I'm suspicious of folks that keep movin' about and who don't seem able to get located permanent nowhere, who air here today and away tomorrow. But you can't say that of the Yancys. They air an old family in the country, and naturally this co't feels obliged to accept a Yancy's word before the word of a stranger. And, in view of the fact that the defendant did not seek litigation, but was perfectly satisfied to let matters rest where they was, it is right and just that all costs should fall on the plaintiff."

man about the place engaged in any sort of activity. The women think too much of the men to allow them to work.

It is because of tribal wars and the cruelty of the Diaz regime that the men of the tribe are almost extinct.

DEATH COMES TO SEEKER

Man Who Asked Permit to Kill His Wife and Family Dies Soon After Getting Work.

Louisville, Ky.—Death which he so eagerly sought a few weeks ago while out of work came unexpectedly to John M. McCord the other day when he was killed at one of the barns of the Louisville Street Railway company, where he had secured employment only a few days ago.

A few weeks ago McCord walked into the office of Prosecuting Attorney Harry Robinson of the police court and started that official by asking to be given a permit to kill his wife and three children and end his own life.

He said he has been without work for a number of months and that his family was in destitute circumstances.

Having tried in vain to secure work, McCord said he had concluded to kill his family and then end his own life, but he did not wish to break any law in so doing and desired to know if he could not secure a permit that would legalize the act.

McCord was placed in custody, but was later released after the authorities had investigated conditions at the man's home and supplied the immediate wants of his family.

A few days ago McCord secured employment washing cars in one of the barns of the Louisville Street Railway company. Yesterday afternoon he was struck by a car backing into the barn and knocked into a repair pit, receiving injuries that resulted in death a few minutes later.

Thought It Was Coffee Until Wife Told Him!

ONE day the wife of a prominent Ohio man served Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH instead of coffee for dinner.

Her husband was very particular about his coffee. She didn't say anything about the change.

What was her astonishment as the meal passed and her husband didn't discover a difference.

He simply asked for an extra cup and remarked that "the coffee" was unusually good.

For ten months he drank Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH before he knew it. And then his wife told him!

Fitch's Grains of Health

The Coffee Substitute With the Coffee Taste

is the only substitute for coffee which smells like coffee—tastes like coffee—has all the coffee satisfaction—without a single bad effect of coffee.

People who dare not touch coffee, can drink all they want of Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH. It is good for them. Doctors recommend it.

In Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH a special high-grade blend of coffee is so combined with roots, herbs and vegetables that the caffeine is counteracted. It is a health drink! Try a package today.

Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH is sold by all leading grocers. The price is 30 cents the pound package. It is ground. Ready for use. It is just as easy to prepare as coffee—but only half as much Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH is required as coffee—a teaspoonful to a cup. Therefore it really costs only half as much as good coffee.

If your grocer cannot supply you, write us, mentioning his name, and we will send you a generous sample package of Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH (enough to serve a large family at breakfast) and a booklet telling you all about Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH. Enclose 6 cents in stamps for postage.

IT'S HEALTHIFIED!
